POOR HATCHES IN INCUBATOR

Carelessness in Manipulation of Machine Is Sure to Bring Disastrous Results.

Many causes for poor hatches of chicks in incubators can be traced to the operators not educating themselves on what is necessary in the way of fertile eggs, saving eggs for incubation and taking care of them. Eggs for incubation should be kept in a well ventilated room with medium temperature. All eggs should be turned at least once every 24 hours, and no eggs should be over ten days or two weeks old at the outside.

One should be careful to strictly follow the directions accompanying the incubator. The directions for one make of machine do not always do for that of another make, for the ventilation, regulation, etc., may be different.

The principal reason why young chicks die in the shell about the eighteenth day is a poorly ventilated room.

Other causes than poorly ventilated rooms are poorly ventilated incubators, and eggs are not properly fertilized. An egg poorly fertilized will start to grow and die for lack of vitality. Opening up the incubator during the latter part of the hatch, or about the time the chicks begin to pip, lets out the moisture and dries the chicken up in the shell, or, in other words, stops the pores of the shell, and causes a great many to die. Under no condition should the incubator be opened after the eighteenth day until the chicks are entirely hatched.

As a rule, beginners with incubators do not read the book of directions properly. Many a person who has seen an incubator, and probably run a hatch of some other make thinks he knows all about it, does not read the directions and makes a flat failure every time. Sometimes no consideration is given to the ventilation of the room in which the machine is placed. Possibly there may be decayed vegetables therein, or the air is stale.

There are few failures nowadays by poorly regulated incubators, except in the cheaper line of machines where the temperature will change 10, 12 and 15 degrees. One point I have noticed here at home by having a green hand set an incubator, says a writer in an exchange. He reads the directions, maybe thinks he has learned them by heart, sets his regulator as soon as the thermometer gets to 103, turns the thumb screw where he supposes is right, and places the eggs in the machine.

Now, the thumb screw and regulator is a very tender affair, and one turn of the thumb screw will cause a change in the atmosphere inside the incubator of three to four degrees. It should be turned slightly, about one-fourth of the way round, so the temperature stands just at 103.

A great mistake is made by paying too much attention to an incubator. I never see to my machine more than twice a day, once in the morning and once in the evening. I see that the regulator is set properly and everything running nicely before putting in the eggs, and then place the eggs in it and do not touch the regulator. At first it will lower the temperature a little when the eggs are put in but if the regulator is properly set, the temperature will rise to the proper degree.

TREAT POULTRY FOR VERMIN

Bath of Road Dust, Tobacco and Sulphur Is Excellent—Dipping Is Also Favored.

One of the best methods to keep poultry free from lice is to provide a "dust bath." This may be made of a box large enough to accommodate several fowls at a time and partly filled with road dust, tobacco dust and sulphur, according to the following proportion: Road dust, six parts; tobacco, one part; sulphur, two handfuls.

Dipping chickens in a two per cent solution of chlorine is also recommended for the control of lice.

FARM STOCK

CLUB WORK PAYS BOYS WELL

Many California Members Repaid Loans for Purebred Animals Out of First Litters.

Agricultural club boys in Eldorado county, Calif., borrowed $592 in March, 1918, from local banks to start their pig club projects. In August, 1919, an inventory showed that these boys owned or had sold $5,820.25 worth of swine. Eight gilts, exhibited by the Eldorado boys at the State fair brought an average price of $60.50. They were from the first litter out of the original sows.

Owing to the high prices of pork last year, 63 per cent of the 1919 enrollment in the California agricultural clubs went into either the sow and litter or the pig feeding contests. Many club members in the State paid high prices with borrowed money for purebred animals, and in most cases have more than repaid the loans out of the first litters, says the United States department of agriculture.

Occasionally the purebred pig clubs in California have found difficulty in securing adequate prices for the stock they raise. To eliminate this trouble they have resorted to the means used by other purebred breeds, and have organized auction sales. Two were held in the past year, one at Lemoore, Kings county, and one in Fresno county. At Lemoore 88 animals brought a total of $2,751, or an average of about $72 a head, which is about the market price for purebred animals in California. In Fresno county 29 head of purebred Poland-Chinas brought a total of $981.50, or an average price of $68.30.

TREATING PIGS FOR WORMS

Sanitary Cement Wallow Should Be Provided and Oil or Dip Added to Kill Vermin.

Before starting spring pigs on summer feed, the entire lot should be treated for worms unless the owner is certain that the premises are clear. Santolina or American wormseed oil treatments are good.

Hogs should have a sanitary cement or frame wallow. Into the water should be put some crude oil or a dip to destroy lice, keep the skin in good condition, and promote gains.

A maximum use of pasture is desirable. If present pastures are poor or insufficient they may be supplemented with rape. A good rape pasture should carry 20 pigs to the acre for the season, according to R. O. Ashby of the Minnesota station.

Wherever pigs are given a full feed of grain the self-feeder should be used to save labor. Corn should be supplemented with a feed rich in protein.

The hogs should hog-off enough corn to finish them for the market, unless they are to be put behind cattle.

SHEEP AS SOURCE OF PROFIT

Close-Grazing Animals Will Thrive on Short Grass and Rough Land—Worthy of Trial.

Sheep would be a source of profit on many farms where they have not been given attention. They are close-grazing animals and as such will thrive on short grass and rough land where other animals would find it difficult to live. Why not get a few sheep and give them a chance on your farm?

EARLY PIGS REQUIRE GRAIN

Young Animals Cannot Be Expected to Get Heavy Enough for Market From Cornfield.

Pigs farrowed in late April, May and June can be fed on the same general plan but cannot be expected to get heavy enough to be marketed to the best advantage from the cornfield, but will require grain feeding up to late December or January at least before they will be heavy enough.

THE LADY OF THE CARDS

By FLORA A. MONTY

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A look of quickening interest brightened the middle-aged face of Andrew Graves as a long gray envelope slipped from the pile of letters through which he was glancing.

He tore it open eagerly and drew out a card on which was a water-color sketch of a woman's head. The faintest odor of apple blossoms clung to the interesting trifle.

Graves studied it intently. It was the fifth he had received that week. Beginning Monday morning, one had arrived each day in the first pile of mail brought to his desk. When the first one came he had been but slightly concerned. The second made him curious, and the third had aroused a deep desire to learn their source. The face appealed to him, rousing vaguely some dormant and disconnected memories of his youth.

Opening a drawer in his desk, he took out the ones he had received earlier in the week. Spreading the cards in a row, he made them the objects of his most attentive consideration. The same face was sketched on all, but each represented a different expression and pose. No word of any kind accompanied them.

He settled back in his chair and sat in quiet thought for some moments. The perfume rising to him recalled the early days of his boyhood, the happiest of which were spent in the old orchard at springtime, when the trees were laden with the fragrant pink and white blossoms. And always the lady of the cards seemed to be with him, romping with the group of children who were his companions.

His usually disciplined mind revolted from its training many times throughout the day, and the hour of closing found him poring over the mysterious pictures once again.

He finally glanced toward the window and the evidence of coming twilight swept away his dreams and reminded him of things to be done before he could keep a dinner engagement that night. He reluctantly arose, replaced the cards in the envelopes and laid them carefully away in the drawer, then hurriedly left the office.

Throughout the evening he had a sense of disappointment. It was as if he had been very near a pleasant discovery and had been suddenly drawn back.

Before he left his hostess said: "I had hoped to have you meet an artist this evening, Mr. Graves. She is an unusually clever woman. At the last moment she was detained."

Andrew Graves frowned. "Perhaps I am fortunate, Mrs. Bowers. Really, since my new home is in process of building, I've been pestered at all times of the day and night by artists who want to do the decorations for that American room of mine. I've taken to refusing to see any of them. I'll look up my own," and he turned abruptly away.

As his car was speeding homeward there flashed into his mind an idea, preposterous, perhaps, but insistent. It connected the cards in the gray envelopes with the artist who had failed to appear. He leaned forward, half yielding to an impulse to go back and demand her name from Mrs. Bowers. Then he decided to go on home, secretly ashamed of himself for allowing his head to be turned by a pretty picture.

But the idea remained and kept first place in his thoughts, with the result that Saturday morning found him at his desk a full hour earlier than he had been for years. Impatiently he ran over his letters. No gray envelope was there! He was chagrined. To have gone so far out of his usual routine as to get down at that hour and then be fooled! He looked his mail over again, but with the same result.

The morning was full of trouble for all the force of employees. Nothing suited, and Tommy, the office boy, dropped his jaunty bearing whenever he carried a card to his employer.

The tenth caller had been turned away despite the urgency of his errand. Tommy once more entered the sanctum. Graves looked up angrily. "Didn't I tell you," he began, but suddenly stopped as his eyes noted the gray envelope the boy carried. "Where did you get that?" he demanded.

"Lady outside, sir, sent it in."

"A lady! Send her in at once." He opened the envelope the boy handed him. The same face was on the card it enclosed, but somehow the expression was almost triumphant.

As he studied it the caller entered, and he started to his feet. He stared, but justifiably, for there was the lady of the cards, and the scent of apple blossoms was filling the room. She was tall and slender, and wore a gown of silvery gray. There was a touch of pink about it that matched the bloom of her cheeks.

"You have come," he said simply. "I felt that you must."

"Then the advertisement was successful?" A momentary gleam of mirth sparkled in the brown eyes.

"The advertisement? Oh, the gray envelopes—the cards? What do they mean? But be seated, please. I am rude." He was plainly bewildered.

"I am an artist, Mr. Graves. I have attempted to see you before, but you were never at leisure, so I adopted the card method of getting you acquainted with my work. I hoped I might secure an interview that way."

"You are wonderfully clever," he said slowly, in undisguised admiration. "You have gained your purpose. I shall be glad to give you a commission."

The lady in gray said nothing, but her smile took him back to the days of his boyhood.

"I want some landscapes, not in oil, but in your charming water colors. I want them to embody certain things." And in a softened voice he described his old home, the apple orchard and the spring by the roadside. "I do not expect them to be absolutely true to life as it was then. But it was my childhood home. Let your work be a type. Do with them as you like. Somehow I feel sure you can make exactly what I want."

"Thank you, Mr. Graves. I shall not disappoint you." And she was gone before he realized that he did not know her name or place of residence.

The next month was interminably long. There was no word from his artist, nor could he learn one thing about her. Mrs. Bowers, though besieged with inquiries, refused an answer.

At last, one day, another gray envelope came in the mail, and the hands that opened it trembled in their eagerness. Another card was in it, this time of a little girl of fourteen, with big brown eyes and waving hair. With a throb he recognized her as the little playmate of his early days who had always been with him in the orchard.

Just beneath the picture was written, "Call at 11 Grey terrace."

Exactly thirty minutes later Andrew Graves was ringing the bell at 11 Grey terrace. No one was in the room where he was shown to wait, but, hung against one wall were half a dozen daintily executed sketches of his old farm home, clear and true as the hand of mortal could make.

Hungry he gazed at them, and then turned to find the artist at his side. Without a word he took her in his arms and kissed her. She made no effort to release herself.

"Maris, I know you now! My little girl sweetheart! My sweetheart forever! Will you come to me when the apple blossoms are here again?" And she said that she would.

Weathercock Long in Use.

Weathercocks seem to date from early times. According to Duncange, the cock was originally devised as an emblem of clerical vigilance. The large bill of the cock was adapted to turn with the wind.

Many churches have for a vane the emblem of the saints to whom they are dedicated. St. Peter's, Cornhill, London, is surmounted with a key, St. Peter having the keys of heaven and hell.

St. Laurence has for a vane a gridiron, and St. Laurence at Norwich has the gridiron with the holy martyr extended upon the bars. A gilt ship in full sail is the vane upon St. Mildred's church in the Poultry.

St. Michael's, Queenshithe, has a ship, the hull of which will hold a bushel of grain, referring to the former traffic in corn at the hithe.

Many Holidays in December.

December, taking the world over, is a month of bank and public holidays. No less than 20 of the 31 days of the month are recognized somewhere as occasions for church fairs or cessation of business in celebration of local or national events.

Christmas, of course, is more widely observed as a holiday than any other, but even it is not recognized everywhere. Non-Christian peoples pay no attention to it, and in countries where the Greek Catholic church prevails, the old style Julian calendar is used, so that, while Christmas is observed as a church festival, it comes about two weeks later than in countries that use the Gregorian calendar.

The Ombu Tree.

The ombu tree on the South American pampas, says W. H. Hudson in Far Away and Long Ago, is a very singular tree, indeed, and being the only representative of tree vegetation natural to the soil, on these level plains, and having also many curious superstitions connected with it, it is a romance in itself. It belongs to the rare Phytolacca family, and has an immense girth—forty or fifty feet in some cases; at the same time the wood is so soft and spongy that it can be cut into with a knife, and is utterly unfit for firewood, for when cut it refuses to dry, but simply rots away like a ripe watermelon.

Brunswick Principles In Fine Tire Making

The reason you are interested in the name on your tire is that it identifies the maker. By knowing the maker you can judge his ideals of manufacture.

The only secret of a super-tire lies in the principles of the maker. His standards decide the quality. For there are no secrets in the tire industry.

What you get depends on what is behind the name on your tire. Brunswick, as you know, means a very old concern, jealous of its good name. Since 1845 the House of Brunswick has been famous the world over for the quality of its products.

The Brunswick Tire is all that you expect—and more. Your first one will be a revelation. You'll agree that you've never known a better. And you'll tell your friends. So spread the news among motorists. The Brunswick is the most welcome tire that ever came to market.

Try one Brunswick Tire. Learn how good a tire can be built. And remember, it costs no more than like-type tires.

Date of Christ's Birth.

The Christian era, first used by a monk, Dionysius Exiguus, in the year 533 A. D. and adopted by Christian nations at a later period, was intended to begin with the birth of Christ. Dionysius is believed, however, to have made an error in fixing that event in the year of Rome 754 instead of 750. Christ's birth is now considered to have taken place in or before the year 4 B. C.

Rights Conferred by Freedom.

In a free country every man thinks he has a concern in all public matters—that he has a right to form and a right to deliver an opinion on them.—Burke.

EARNING RESPECT.

The respect of one's fellow men is more to be desired than wealth. It is something all men desire, but not all men secure. Generally men fail to win respect because they do not make it their first ambition. They put something else above it. Respect is not flattery because flattery has a motive behind it, and, besides, is superficial. Nor is it popularity, for popularity is frothy and unsubstantial. Respect is the sincere regard that arises out of personal worth. It may be long in coming, but it wears well. It is in reality a life's achievement. You can't expect anyone to respect you unless you respect yourself, says Milwaukee Journal. That does not mean sounding your own praises, but just the consciousness that you have of being square with yourself, of having brought yourself out right. Respect is something in which no man has a vested right. It has to be earned. It can attach to organizations as well as to individuals. It can be gained or forfeited, but it is not negotiable. And yet it is the greatest asset of a business man or corporation. What makes it the greatest prize of life is that once it is gained all other things are added unto it.

Destruction of the old order in favor of the new, thinks the Tokyo Jiji, is now the great world tendency, to the advance of which no resistance is possible. It is no wonder, therefore, that Japan is also being affected by this universal reform wave, either politically, socially, or spiritually. Labor unrest is seething throughout the country, while the necessity of labor unions and regulations is theoretically recognized, the question being reduced to one of time. On the other hand, the question of universal suffrage has also entered upon a stage of practice. Since these questions have already been settled satisfactorily in Europe and America, Japan has only to settle her own question by following their example. In this connection, the journal cannot help remembering how strong conservative elements are in Japan, and how often they frustrate the efforts of those espousing the cause of reform. Turning to the latter, the Jiji counsels them to refrain from rash movements for any thoughtlessness on their part is sure to be utilized by the conservatives to balk them of their object, thus defeating their cherished purpose.

Detroit was one of the first of United States cities to discover the danger in allowing great bodies of workers in her factories to continue without becoming familiar with the language of the country. Now Detroit is said to be adding to its American citizenship more rapidly than any other city. This is encouraging, for when 80 factories, employing in the aggregate 250,000 hands, show 1,000 aliens per factory, as Detroit's have recently, not to be making citizens rapidly would seem deplorable. And this is so, even though naturalization papers are not all there is to Americanization.

For the first time in the history of the Turkish empire, women addressed a political meeting in Constantinople the other day. It is an illustration of how rapidly the world moves today that this should be possible when but a comparatively short time ago widows in India were being taught it was both wicked and dishonorable, to say nothing of its being thoroughly unwomanly, to refuse to be roasted alive on the funeral pyres of their husbands.

Professional and intellectual classes in Vienna will appear on the streets shoeless both as a protest against profiteering and because they cannot afford the present price of shoes. Under reversed conditions, the barefoot boy of the classes will achieve his triumph by working his way down by force of his native ability to the wealthy laboring masses.

The United States coal commission advises householders to buy their coal for next winter now. It would have been easy if they could have laid by ice last winter for use next summer. Besides, to buy now would upset our grasshopper tradition of singing all summer and shivering all winter.

You may not be able to raise them so they will look just like the picture in the catalogue—as a general thing only the lithographer can do that; but plant 'em anyhow, because what comes up will be good to eat.

An Eastern judge has decided that a wife has a right to search her husband's pockets. There was a time when that would have been a terrible blow to a husband's pockets.

means more than the flare of rockets and the roll of drums—symbols of our patriotic celebrations. For this day commemorates the birth of a nation—of a government of the people, by the people, for the people" which stands today a leader on the earth.

Each generation has strengthened the great structure of Americanism founded on the ideals expressed in America's Declaration of Independence—ideals to which today the world aspires.

OLD SOUTH MEETING PLACE

Glorious Memorial of Revolutionary Days Is Now One of the Proudest Possessions of Boston.

On Independence day, in the midst of flaunting, flapping flags, banners and streamers, the quiet, sober red brick walls and soaring white belfry of the Old South meeting house speak of the steadfastness during two and one-half centuries of the Society of the Third Church in Boston to its noble ideals.

The first building occupied by the society was picturesquely called the Cedar church, the place of Benjamin Franklin's baptism. The society was composed of such men as John Alden, eldest son of John and Priscilla of Mayflower fame; John Hull, a celebrated silversmith of the city; Thomas Brattle, one of the wealthiest merchants of his day; Joshua Scottow, a magistrate and leading military man; such women as the widow of John Cotton, and Mary Norton, who gave the site for the new church, on the main road to Roxbury, close to where Governor Winthrop lived for so long. It may be of interest to note, just here, that the church has always held this valuable real estate, from which it at present receives a considerable income, largely used for church extension.

lutionary war, was a man of learning and the possessor of, for that time, an extensive library.

Among his books was the log of the Mayflower, which so strangely disappeared from the church edifice. This old library, though still owned by the church, is at present housed in the Boston public library. Much of the pre-revolutionary stir of talk centered around the South meeting house; from there a party of citizens, being disguised as Indians, departed on the errand of tipping the tea into the harbor, and it was by means of a ladder and the fine colonial window behind the pulpit that Dr. Joseph Warren, before delivering one of his stirring addresses, effected his sensational leap into the midst of the crowd.

In the Civil war the church was as active as it has always been in times of national stress, since the wars of King Philip. Its pastor, Doctor Manning, became a chaplain, and the church was again a central meeting place for discussion and organization. In the early seventies business, in its steady growth, encroached upon the premises and its congregation diminished, in part because Washington street in those days was extraordinarily difficult of access by any public conveyance.

There was talk of removing to a more residential section, but this idea met with opposition; so large a part had the church played in public affairs that the people had come to look upon the building as their own especial property. There were obstacles and litigation, but finally the removal was effected and the new church in Copley square was dedicated in December of 1875.

AMERICAN PATRIOTS' PRAYER.

Parent of all, omnipotent
In heav'n and earth below,
Thro' all creation's bounds unspent,
Whose streams of goodness flow,

Teach me to know from whence I rose,
And unto what designed;
No private aims let me propose,
Since I live with human kind.

But chief to hear my country's voice,
May all my thoughts incline,
'Tis reason's law, 'tis virtue's choice,
'Tis nature's call and thine.

Me from fair freedom's sacred cause
Let nothing e'er divide;
Gratitude, nor gold, nor vain applause,
Nor friendship false misguide.

Let me not faction's partial hate
Pursue to this land's woe;
Nor grasp the thunder of the state
To wound a private foe.

If, for the right, to wish the wrong
My country shall combine,
Single to serve th' erron'ous throng,
Spite of themselves, be mine.

Fourth of July

Day of glory! Welcome day!
Freedom's banners greet thy ray;
See! how cheerfully they play
With thy morning breeze,
On the rocks where pilgrims
Kneeled,
On the heights where squadrons
Wheeled,
When a tyrant's thunder pealed
O'er the trembling seas.

God of armies! did thy stars
On their courses smite his cars;
Elast his arm and wrest his bars
From the heaving tide?
On our standard, lo! they burn,
And, when days like this return,
Sparkle o'er the soldier's urn
Who for freedom died.

God of peace, whose spirit fills
All the echoes of our hills,
All the murmur of our rills,
Now the storm is o'er,
O let freemen be our sons,
And let future Washingtons
Rise, to lead their valiant ones
Till there's war no more!

—JOHN PIERPONT.

GRAND MONUMENT IN DANGER

Obelisk That Marks Earliest Revolutionary Battle Must Not Be Allowed to Crumble.

The people of New England are much concerned over the report that Bunker Hill monument is crumbling, and is in danger of a fate like that of the Campanile in Venice which collapsed a dozen years ago.

The granite obelisk known as Bunker Hill monument, which commemorates the earliest real battle of the Revolutionary war, is the most conspicuous object that catches the eye as one approaches Boston by sea. The shaft is 30 feet square at the base and is 220 feet in height. Inside is a hollow cone around which winds a spiral flight of stone steps by which ascent is made to the top, where there is an observatory. The monument was begun in 1825 when the cornerstone was laid by General Lafayette and when Webster delivered the famous oration that is familiar to every school-boy. Because of a lack of funds it remained unfinished for nearly 20 years; then, largely through the efforts of American women, the necessary money was raised and the complete structure was dedicated in 1843.

Efforts are being made to re-enforce the crumbling granite in hopes that the monument may remain a Mecca for many generations of patriotic Americans.

Lafayette—"The Beechwood."

Etymologists have discovered the origin of the famous name which during the recent years of war has become dearer than ever to Frenchmen and Americans alike. Lafayette came from the part of France known as Auvergne. He was born at Chavagnac, near Brionde, and his ancestral home stands not far from the village of Aire-la-Fayette. In this part of the country the word "fayette" means a wood of "fayards," and "fayards" comes from the Latin word "fagus," which in the dialect of the country has come to mean "hêtre" or beech tree. A "fayette," there, is a beech wood. Etymologically, then, the word "Lafayette" is the equivalent of "The Beechwood."

MEMORIAL AT VALLEY FORGE

Chapel Dedicated to Memory of Washington and the Revolution Is Rapidly Nearing Completion.

Valley Forge, that historical center which will always be identified with the heroic efforts of the Colonial troops in their struggle for liberty, now has the distinction of possessing one of the most representative and expressive memorial buildings in the entire country. Taking the form of a chapel, it is dedicated to the memory of Washington, and at the same time typifies the entire period of the Revolution. It is intended to house a collection of mementos, almost every one of which is connected with some individual or event of the Revolutionary period.

The complete group will consist of a cloister, chapel and building, containing rooms in which patriotic societies may meet; a library of documents pertaining to the Revolution, and a tower overlooking the encampment.

The cloister is divided into 13 bays, each representing the officers and men from one of the thirteen original states. The interior of the chapel is rapidly approaching completion. Forty-eight panels represent all the states of the Union and symbolize the final achievement of the national group. The glass windows will constitute a national history in themselves. They tell the story of the discovery, settlement, and development of the nation

Facade and Main Entrance of the Memorial Chapel.

In a progression leading up to the west window, which will represent the life of George Washington as told in 36 medallions. The various leaders of the Revolution, including Robert Morris, John Paul Jones, Thomas Jefferson, John Hancock, and others, will be depicted in other windows.

The choir stalls are of carved wood. The figures in the niches at the top of these stalls represent the uniforms of the Continental commands, and above them will be hung fac similes of the colors carried by the troops. The complete series will consist of 16 flags, including two of the French regiments that served in this country during the war.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

A TRIBUTE.

The years are but as moments, and your spirit, Lafayette, Remembers, as you come to us, the mighty men you met
In the epic days of yoretime when you stood, as we today,
Where the breezes fanned our faces
from the bosom of the bay.

Joy was then within the soul of you,
and youth was in your eyes,
As the flag that conquered tyranny
was flaunted to the skies;
And there, mayhap, a vision for a moment came to you,
And the Future told the wonder of the deeds we were to do.

Far across a sea of peril you, a knighly sword, had fared,
And embalmed in song and story
are the valiant feats you dared;
You were Chivalry in action, with a splendor in your gaze,
And our fathers, victor freemen, crowned your youthful brow with bays.

Did you see that year the faces of our heroes back from France,
And the light of high endeavor that was shining in their glance?
Did you see our bold crusaders who had crossed the sea you sailed
To fight for freedom far afield, and by their might prevailed?

Ah, then, you saw your very soul in eyes that gleam today
With dreams that led you, Lafayette,
upon your splendid way;
What they have done for stricken
France, in that heroic past
You did to save a nation that has paid its debt at last.

—Edward S. Van Zile.

A Pattern for the World.
The signing of the Declaration of Independence, on July 4, 1776, marked the birth of this nation, which stands today as the world's most potent factor in upholding the doctrine that all men are created free and equal.

Lafayette

CHAMPION OF FREEDOM

General Lafayette, From a Picture Made Late in Life.

He came to fight for Freedom's cause
Against a tyrant's power,
When Washington at Valley Forge
Had reached his darkest hour,
His army fought beside our own,
And, when the task was done,
Another nation had been born,
For Victory was won.

A boy in years—a man in heart—
Son of a mighty race,
He wrote his name in mighty deeds
That time shall not erase.
He brought new hope, and faith, and strength

In time of black despair,
And freedom triumphed on our soil,
For France was fighting there.

And then across the many years,
By history's glorious chance,
Against oppression's heavy hand
Our soldiers fought for France;
And when the last hard fight was won
We well had paid the debt
That always had been ours to pay
To France and Lafayette!

Independence Hall

Independence hall came into existence without any thought of the part it was destined to play in the birth of the nation. Necessity really created it. It appears, from documents well authenticated, that the Provincial assembly of Pennsylvania had been meeting in a house, annually rented in Philadelphia, until May 1, 1776. It was shortly after this date that the assembly voted $2,000 toward the purchase of ground for the building and its construction. It was designed by Andrew Hamilton, a barrister of Philadelphia, who in making his plans, provided for two wings, one of them Congress hall. In 1782 ground for the building was broken, but the construction dragged on for some years before the work was finished, although certain rooms were used for some years before the whole was completed.

Construction of Congress hall began in 1787, and was completed in 1790, and the remaining wing of Independence hall, known as "City Hall," was started in 1789 and finished in 1791.

Colonies' Second Petition.

In 1775, on the 8th of July, the second Continental congress adopted the second petition to the king. This congress, which was held at Philadelphia, was the same which later adopted the Declaration of Independence. On the same day of the same year Lord Dunmore, the royal governor of Virginia, fearing a general uprising of the colonies, took refuge with his family on board the Fowney, a British warship stationed at Yorktown.

In 1776, on the 8th of July, the Declaration of Independence was proclaimed from the steps of the statehouse at Philadelphia, and read aloud to the army at New York.

CHIMES THAT ARE HISTORIC

Bells of the Old North Church, Boston, a Part of the Country's Glorious History.

On the date that the armistice was granted by the Allies the chimes in the Old North church, Boston, were rung for forty-five minutes, thus keeping up their record of ringing for every important event in the history of the United States.

The sound of these historic bells was the signal which started Paul Revere on his famous ride. Ten years before the Revolution the bells rang for the repeal of the Stamp act, their ringing proclaimed the news of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, of the peace which followed the War of 1812, and of the peace which ended the Mexican war. The peace jubilee following the cessation of the Civil war was celebrated by these bells, also the victorious conclusion of the Spanish war. A sadder duty was sounding dirges after the deaths of Lincoln, Garfield, Zachary Taylor and Vice-President Wilson.

The eight bells in the chimes were cast in England and set up in the old belfry in 1745. The bells are numbered and each bears an inscription. Some of these inscriptions which explain the origin of the bell are:

No. 1. "This bell of eight bells is the gift of a number of generous Steeple of Old North Church as it Appeared in 1715.

persons to Christ church in Boston, New England, Anno 1744, A. R."

No. 3 "We are the first ring of bells for ye British empire in North America. Anno 1744, A. R."

No. 6 "The subscriptions for these bells were begun by John Hancock and Robert Temple, church wardens, 1743, and completed by Robert Jenkins and John Gould, church wardens, 1744, A. R."

Up to 1840 it required nine men to play the chimes as it was then done. Each man held a rope and pulled swinging bells until the clapper touched the sides. That was a cumbersome method, and if one of the men were absent the ringing had to be given up.

Now each bell is fixed, and when the rope is pulled a striker falls on the side of the bell, making the sound.

Charles H. Jewell, the present chime ringer, is one of the Jewell family, whose members have been chime ringers in the Old North church for ninety years. The privilege of ringing the bell is handed from father to son. When Charles, who is fifty-four years old, gives up his task, Fred Jewell expects to take his father's place. And when Fred has served his time there is a grandson, Charles, now only five years of age, who is destined to become the fifth Jewell to ring the historic chimes for joy, sorrow, for good news and for bad.

NATION HOLDS DAY SACRED

Rightly or Wrongly, the Fourth of July Is Enshrined in the Hearts of Americans.

The discovery of a long-lost letter from Thomas McKean, one of the signers of the American Declaration of Independence, to Cesar Augustus Rodney, nephew of Cesar Rodney, another signer of that document, reveals information that the Declaration was not actually signed on the 4th of July. "Now that I am on the subject," wrote Mr. McKean, in August, 1813, replying to a question by Mr. Rodney, "I will tell you some truth, not generally known. In the printed journal of congress for 1776, volume 2, it would appear that the Declaration of Independence was signed on the 4th of July by the members, whose names are there inserted; but the fact is not so, for no person signed it on that day nor for many days after. . . . on the 4th of July, 1776, the Declaration of Independence was ordered to be engrossed, on parchment & then to be signed." Mr. McKean adds that after the 4th he was away from Philadelphia for some months assisting General Washington in completing a "camp of ten thousand men," and that he then returned to congress and added his own signature. It is all very interesting, but of course it will not make any difference to the Fourth.

American's Creed

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people, whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect Union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.

Myrtle Sage

"United States of America."

The name was original with Jefferson, and appears in the final paragraph of the Declaration of Independence, as follows: "We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these colonies are, and a right ought to be free and independent states."

Made Jefferson Immortal.
The Declaration of Independence was drawn up by Thomas Jefferson, who was only thirty-three years old. This remarkable manifesto, into which it has been said Jefferson "poured the soul of a continent," was adopted as he had drawn it, with the exception of a few unimportant changes.

A Rat That Didn't Smell After Being Dead for 3 Months

"I swear it was dead at least 3 months," said James Skyles, Butcher, Westfield, N. J. "We saw this rat every day. Put a cake of RAT-SNAP behind a barrel. Month later my wife asked about the rat. Remembered the barrel, looked behind it. There was the big rat—dead, not the slightest odor." Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00 Sold and guaranteed by

I Picked the G-O Tractor Because It Has Made Good For Eight Years—On the Farm

No farmer around here wants to invest his money in a tractor that is an experiment. He wants a tractor that has already proved its ability to other farmers—proved dependability for heavy work, and low cost for upkeep.

A boy or hired man can operate the G-O and keep it on the job. It has fewer parts—less to get out of order. It gives six speeds, forward or reverse, without transmission gears. No gears to strip. And there isn't an exposed gear throughout the tractor—all enclosed and running in oil. No gears or chains on the rear wheels.

I picked the G-O out of all the tractors I inspected because it has an eight-year record for lowering the cost of farming for farmers all over the country.

It has shown them that it is built right. Four wheels, four cylinders—14-28 H. P.—on gasoline or kerosene, with endurance built into all its parts for years of service.

The General Ordnance Company stands behind every farmer buying a G-O Tractor. It gives him an absolute guarantee that every part of his tractor will stay on the job.

Drop in and see the G-O, or write me for more information.

LESSON FOR JULY 4

DAVID IN CAMP AND COURT.

LESSON TEXT—I Sam. 17:1-58.
GOLDEN TEXT—David loved the Lord self wisely in all his ways; and the Lord was with him.—I Sam. 17:14.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—I Sam. 19:1-17; Ephes. 6:10-24.

PRIMARY TOPIC—David and the Giant.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Shepherd Boy Conquers a Giant.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Fighting the Good Fight.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Overthrowing Modern Goliaths.

I. David in Camp (I Samuel, 17). While the armies stood eyeing each other for battle the Philistines, having a warrior among them of great strength, sought to decide the war by a combat between two selected champions. The nation whose champion was slain was to be subject to the other.

1. The champions (vv. 1-37). (1) Goliath of the Philistines (vv. 4-11). Note his characteristics: (a) He was a giant (v. 4). Saul made no attempt to meet this giant. Even Jonathan, who had distinguished himself at Michmash (I Sam. 14), seems to have lacked in courage. (b) He was filled with conceit. His size, his panoply of war and his strength caused him to believe that no evil could befall him. (c) He was boastful. Likely his reputation reminded them of a former experience when Samson, Israel's giant, wrought such great mischief among them. (d) He was defiant. He openly defied the army of Israel—the people of the Most High. (e) He was scornful. He treated the Israelites with the utmost contempt.

(2) David the Israelite (vv. 13-37). In the providence of God, David was sent to the camp at a time to hear the boasting of this proud and contemptible Philistine. His three eldest brothers were in the army and his father sent him with some provisions for them as well as for the captain. While talking with his brothers Goliath made his appearance. The sight of Israel's cowardice and lack of zeal for God prompted David to offer his service. He was not a blind enthusiast who disregarded the use of means, but was careful to use means, and most particular as to what they should be. He put aside the untried armor of Saul, knowing that God's will for him was to use by faith that which he had thought insignificant.

2. The battle (vv. 38-48). When Goliath beheld David coming up against him he cursed him by his gods Dagon, Baal and Ashtaroth, showing that it was not merely a battle between David and Goliath, but between the true God and false gods. David hastened to meet Goliath. A stone from his sling smote Goliath and he fell to the earth upon his face. David went forth in the name of the Lord of Hosts that all the earth might know that there was a God in Israel.

3. The victory (vv. 49-58). Goliath was killed and the Philistine army routed. This victory is a prophecy of a greater one when the devil, the defiant enemy of God, shall be broken and his army put to flight.

II. David in Court (18:1-16).

1. Saul jealous of David (vv. 1-9). David went into battle with Goliath out of zeal for God and true religion, not for personal glory; but it turned out as always, that because he made God first, God honored him. "Him that honoreth me, I will honor." Upon David's return from the pursuit of the Philistines he was met by a triumphal chorus of women from all the cities of Israel, shouting praises unto him for his victory over their enemies. This was too much for Saul. This was but the occasion which fanned into a flame the passion which lingered in Saul's bosom.

2. Saul tries to kill David (vv. 10, 11). This is an example of the awful tragedy which may result if we harbor envy and jealousy. Saul had prepared a place in his heart for this evil spirit to dwell. When one gives himself up to the indulgence of his baser passions the devil finds a place in his heart to dwell.

3. David's wise conduct (vv. 12-16). Because Saul recognized that God had departed from him and that David must increase while he must decrease, he tried to get rid of David. He sent him from him and made him captain over his army. His envy even assumed a role of cunning and he offered his daughter to David as a reward for bravery in battle. Not that he cared for David, but that the Philistines might kill him instead of doing it with his own hands (v. 17). In spite of all this, David acts discreetly. He wins the favor of the people and is loved by the Lord. Despite Saul's intrigues David went from success to success.

Christ With the Disciples.

For forty days Christ was with the disciples talking with them of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. If we cannot believe that the Apostles deceived others, it seems (if possible) still more unlikely that they were the victims of deception.—Bishop Westcott.

Master of Circumstances.

It is the man or woman of faith, and hence of courage, who is the master of circumstances, and who makes his or her power felt in the world.
